HOW DO I IDENTIFY MICE OR RATS?

Mice and rats both have long hairless tails and fur-covered bodies. Mice may be either brown and white in color (Deer Mouse or Field Mouse) or grey in color (House Mouse). In the Northeast, the most common species of rat encountered is the Norway Rat. With a long tail and robust body, this rat sometimes enters homes in search of food and water. Often, the only evidence of rodent activity will be their droppings left behind as they forage throughout your home.

Mouse droppings are approximately the size of a grain of rice and black in color. Rat droppings are larger and are often slightly curved.

WHAT THREATS DO MICE OR RATS POSE TO ME OR MY HOME?

Both mice and rats are public health pests and are known to harbor and transmit many diseases, such as Murine Typhus, Rickettsialpox, Leptospirosis, Rat Bite Fever, Lymphocytic Choriomeningitis, Salmonella, and Plague.

These diseases are spread by the contamination of surfaces with rodent feces, urine and even in some rare cases, bites. In addition to the health risks associated with rodents, their gnawing can pose a risk to homes. Rodents gnaw to wear down their teeth throughout their lives.

CONTACT US

Act today by calling us for a free inspection. Our licensed, insured, and experienced technicians can determine the source of the problem and eradicate mice or rats from your home or business in NJ, NY, PA, MD, and DE. There's no need to suffer from a mouse or rat problem when we can get rid of them once and for all.

HOW DO I GET RID OF MICE OR RATS?

Reduce low-lying plants and overgrown grass. Wood piles and debris, which may also provide harborage, should be moved away from the home.

Piles of debris should be discarded. Birds feeding at bird feeder often spill seed, which attracts rodents. Switching to block style bird seeds or removing feeders will reduce rodent food sources.

Standing water around homes should be eliminated, especially if the problem is rats, which need to drink water daily.

The sealing of gaps and the installation of effective door sweeps will further reduce the likelihood of pest entry. In recent university studies, ultrasonic devices have been shown to be ineffective in repelling pests, including rodents.

Project Discovery by Crossroads

Life is a journey toward self-discovery... let Crossroads be part of that journey.

Project Discovery by Crossroads is designed to provide safety and support for LGBTQ youth.

Project Discovery by Crossroads

Was created in 2005 to provide LGBTQ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender or questioning) youth ages 12-21, with a community based home environment of support and sensitivity. Social, emotional and/or behavioral difficulties, along with individual LGBTQ issues are addressed by Treatment Parents who have an understanding of the extra pressures of adolescents when sexual identity and preference are added into the already challenging mix today's young people face.

The Confidence to Grow Up & Grow Strong

Project Discovery by Crossroads provides extra training to these therapeutic foster homes to help support LGBTQ youth people so they can develop a healthy and positive self, evaluation, awareness and insight. The future can be a bright one with many wonderful possibilities... if we take care to provide the right place and the right space in which our LGBTQ youth can live and grow. Project Discovery by Crossroads is a Medicaid funded program with an average length of stay of 18-18 months.

Home isn't always a safe place for LGBTQ young people.

The teenage years are not easy ones. Young people struggle with school, parental issues and emotional ups and downs as they transition into adulthood.

But when you are an LGBTQ teen, you can face far more serious dangers...simply because of who you are.

To avoid a home environment that does not embrace or support questions about sexual identity, many young LGBTQ youth run away from home, making them easy targets for human trafficking or the dangers of street life.
